An ex-Editor on his Travels.

FARMVILLE, 30th January, 1875.

Editors of the Dispatch: 1 came here from tichmond. Captain Flourney ren the train.

Of the newest book and the latest play, Of the keenest move in the statesman's fray, Uf the freshest topic of the day, Of the marvel of the week.

Richmond. Captain Flournoy ren the train on the Danville road, and Captain Lassiter ran the Southside train. They were both Polite, and collected my fare as though they regretted I had to pay it as much as I did. There was a legislator on board. I tackled bim as to his views upon the succession to the Lieutenant-Governor's position. He did not pan out worth a cent. I gave him good advice, however. I told him not to elect a member of the Legislature or any old political pipe-layer, but to give us a representative young Virginian. A man like Major John Daniel, of Lynchburg, would suit everybody. This is a fact.

At Burkeville I did not see either John Morton or Alpheus Bolling. I did see two live chickens, however. I had thought the chicken tribe long since expansied thereabouts. There is a good opening at Burkeville for a bar. Those who pursue this usestation are very nice gentlemen, but very poor judges of whiskey. I had been there before, and suspecting the whiskey I called for gin. It had "just given out." I called for appla brands. A name ditto. As I am for apple-brandy. Answer ditto. As I am a determined man when I start, I consented to take three fingers of whiskey. "Straight or mixed?" "Mixed, I thank you, as much as possible; can't burt it by mixing it." . I worried it down, and my conscience has troubled me and my stomach reproached me ever since. I held it down until I reached Farmville, when I reproduced it, and had it analyzed by a chemist. This process revealed that it was a distribution from beggar's lice and Spanish needles mixed with bad water and tobacco-juice. Fifteen cents a drink is the price. With Mozis Addums, I will never more "mend our drink" at the junction.

On the Southside train I met a prominent barkeeper of Farmville. He knew me, and spoke to me, but I took him for a dry goods man instead of a wet-grocer. Made his acquaintance since my arrival. Polite man; good whiskey; price, ten cents. A large number of courteous colored persons met me at the train at Farmville, many saluting me at once with, " Marse John, let me tote your trunk." (Fractional currency is popular with these fellow-citizens.) And there stood old aunt Peggs leaning on her cane, looking as she did some thirty years stands the routine of how not to do it, and since. She goes for me: "Hy, chile, where thereby "turns an honest penny." Instead you come from? Whar is you livin' now? Bless my soul, I nursed you, and I nursed your mammy before you ! Well, well, well ! I is always glad to see de old stock comit.' back to de old neighborhood! How long you gwine stay?" &c., &c. The production of a little fractional currency was inevitable. A little further on I encountered a middle-aged colored gentleman, who remarked, "Marse John, I is glad to see you. I bin wantin' to see you for a long time! How old is you? I want to know, so I can have it sot down in de Bible?" "What is that to you?" I inquired. "Don't you know," says he, "that you and me and Miss Jenny are all the same year's chillen! We was all bornded nigh about the same mont. and of you tell me how ole you is, I know zictly how ole I is." I gratified him, as I am still proud of my youth. The Grangers had their district meeting here a few days since, and doubtless accomplished much towards saving the coun-I inquired of one (an old schoolmate), who

Quite an excitement stirred the town yesterday and the day before on account of the arrival of a newly-married couple from Amelia, the bride being quite a good-looking white girl (of a respectable family, we are told,) and the groom a black, gressy, viciouslooking, corn-tield negro. The latter is now reposing in Cumberland county jail. The former's conduct is accounted for on the grounds of lunacy.

The religious revival which commenced here under the preaching of Dr. Rosser is still quietly progressing. All denominations unite in social worship day after day, and much good has been accomplished

We are well aware-through mournful experience-that the advertisement of a hotel may be very uncertain evidence of its actual merits. We have known carayansaries endowed with ideal virtues in the Railroad Guide which, upon actual trial, proved wanting in every particular except dirt and discomfort. But we see accidentally the announcement of an Inn in Georgia which is full of golden promise. It "is kept by two ladies from Virginia." These ladies ginia consols sold at 50%. guarantee the following: 1. Something good to eat; 2. Polite servants; 3. Clean rooms; 4. Good beds. 5. A Jolly Clerk! The force of botel-keeping can no further go. Shenstone himself, who is the laureate of inus, could add nothing to it. We can imagine ourselves arriving, a worn-out way farer, at this oasis of a public bouse. We are greeted at the threshold by the two ladies from Virginia-staid, dignified matrons (F. F. V.'s perbaps, who have seen better days). We are received also by the folly clerk. We are brushed and generally resuscitated by the polite servants. We have a repast neither too heavy nor too light, but in something of Attic taste. We then go to the Clean Room, and soon, in one of the Good Beds, we are like Kirg Duncan-"shut up in measureless content." In the morning, having slept the sleep of the just, we find gallons of water, yards upon yards of towels, an enormous basin, and no hair-brush on the dressing-table, which last negative blessing we mention with special thankfulness. We go down-a giant refreshed. We are greeted by the Jolly Clerk. We are saluted by the Two Ladies from Virginia. We have clear, strong coffee, fresh eggs, broiled chicken (not ben) for our

Many years ago a rich man foreclosed a mortgage on a poor man, and with contemptuous words and gestures turned the poor man into the street. The poor man came to Chicago and became a millionaire; by accident met his debtor of many years ago. The latter recognized his heartless creditor, but did not jeer at his misery or refuse to help him. "Smith," he said kindly, "let bygones be bygones. I will do what I can for you. Take this note to Mr. Webb, and he will find you a berth on the Van Buren street-cars as driver." And Mr. Webb did, and Smith froze nine toes, eight fingers, two thumbs, his nose and both cheeks, that night. The debtor was avenged .- Chicago Tribune.

money to the Noble Ladies; but we do, and they take it; and so we ride away happy and hilarious. Reader, dost thou like the picture?-New York Tribune.

Poetry is spoiled by the addition of a sin-gle word. A young lady, after listening to her lover's description of the setting sun, exclaimed, "Oh, Alphonse! Alphonse! what a soul you have for art! You were meant for a great painter!" Her father, upexpectedly close behind, added, "and tenders increased $1,000,000; deposits decreased

A finely-dressed lady slipped and fell near the post-office yesterday, and the bootblack who assisted her to her feet inquired, "Did you break any bones, madam?" "No, I guess not," she replied; "but I am just as mad as if I had broken a dozen of 'em !"

The two Democrats from this State who are contending for the honor of presiding over the next House of Representatives are "game" fellows; they are Wood-Cox .-Burgeuse Courier.

On the Terrace. The stately lady, the grave, calm man, stood on the terrace together:
Mid the bright rose thickets the revellers strayed, From lawn to fountain the children played, and hidden music sweet melodies made, at the fate in the July weather.

Lightly, with his practiced tongue,
He touched on all and each,
With here a sneer and there a jest,
And now a grave word, as to aftest,
"I give you the foam on the top—the rest
No passing hand can reach."

The measure of the music changed;
On the summer preeze there stole
A low, sweet, simple, homely air,
Such as one listens to everywhere.
To the two who stood on the turace there
It spoke as to heart and soul.

Her proud head drooped, his low voice ceased, For a moment in thought they stood, Young, eager, fearless, happy, and true, As when no cold wisdom cislined her due, When love was fresh and hope was new, dener's breeches ought to be patched at the knees, not at the seat. You won't do for me.''

There is ittle of this stock in the market at this time, and not much demand. Fresh receipis, as they come in forther along, may inspire inquiry, and for this occurrence we have to wait. Richmond letters that we have seen summarize virginia affairs as follows: "Buyers are now in the country buying all they can, and we anticipate a strong market. Etemmers are paying from 15½@ 17c. for loose leaf, and not fine at that The weather is cold and there is not much of anything sellings as yet." The prices which stemmers are paying, acgording to the above extracts, will necessitate a further advance in England. Fifteen and a half and seventeen cents, which the stemmers are paying are equivalent to a final cost to them of about 123@26c. respectively, while an English circular for December quotes strips from good to fine at 24 for December quotes strips from good to fine at 24

Rev. H. H. Hawes (one of Richmond's sons) has charge of the Presbyterian church at this place. He is a most excellent preacher, devoted to his work, and vastly popular. His labors have been greatly blessed in building up his church.

Continued rains and execrable roads have afflicted this portion of the moral vineyard for some days. To-day, however, dawns brightly.

The Hamilton Telegraph incautiously copied a fish problem that recently made its appearance, and is now struggling with a bushel or two of answers. "In this connection," it romarks, "we will say that we have hired a mathematician to propose a problem for our readers that will likely make a good many of them stick out their tongues several look for the bulk of their supplies."

ATMORE'S MINOE-MEAT, put up in barrels, helfbarrels, buckets, cans, and jars. All who have used it say it is the best in the world. Liquor enough in it to warrant it to keep twelve months. Black with citron, currants, raisins, and spices; ready for use, and no fear of its turning sour or fermentias like most preparations offered for sale. Call and supply
